Class shortage eased

A temporary building under construction on campus.

The University has undertaken a R1,7-m emergency building programme to ease the serious shortage of lecture halls, laboratories and offices on campus.

Two lecture rooms, which can accommodate about 170 students, have been completed adjacent to the cafeteria. Classes which are now held in the dinning hall of the new hostel will be transferred there at the start of the next semester.

A lecture room and laboratories for physics and biology are under construction near the Campus Control offices.

A further eight lecture rooms, laboratories for physics and chemistry and 50 offices will be contructed south of the Administration Building.

The materials used in these 'pre-fab' typed buildings have been tested and approved by the CSIR for durability and sturdiness.

The Co-ordinator of the Accommodation Committee, Professor Gerrie Wagenaar, says the emergency building programme is also in anticipation of another big increase in student numbers next year.

'We are faced with an immediate problem and putting up these temporary buildings is the only short-term solution.

'The University has only 60 percent of the accommodation it is entitled to in terms of norms laid down for universiteits and technicons,' he says.

Building projects that are 'on the cards' are a new library, extensions to the Physical Education building, a science block on the southern campus, a multi-purposes building for the Faculty of Arts, extensions to the Old and New Arts buildings and a multi-purposes building for the Faculty of Economic and Management Sciences.

SRC's labour forum

The SRC is to convene a forum to discuss labour issues and to determine the nature of student support for the progressive trade union movement.

In a statement, the SRC secretary, Mr Russel McGregor, said the SRC was recently approached by students concerned about the plight of workers and the workers' struggle in general.

'It is felt that a structure should be initiated which can propagate the fact that workers should lead the struggle, to assert progressive trade unions in the community and to launch a research project into labour issues.

'The SRC feels that working class politics is indeed a pertinent issue of today and that we should look into the possibility of achieving the above objectives.'

He says the SRC feels, however, that consultations will have to be held with progressive trade unions to determine the exact nature of student support.

'It will also be important to draw in other organisations on campus that will be interested in labour research and assisting workers in their struggle.

Hulp met onderig

Die hoof van die Onderrigsentrum, Professor Dries Sinclair, sê die sentrum beskik nou oor omvattende fasiliteite wat vir personeel van hulp kan wees by die onderrigtaak.

Hy sê enige persoon wat advies of inligting insake onderrigstrategieë wil bekom, kan met hom in aanraking tree.

Die sentrum beskik oor 'n fotografiese afdeling wat doenig is met die neem van foto's en skyfies vir opvoedkundige doeleindes, die prosessering en druk van films en die duplisering en kopiëring van filmmateriaal. Daar is ook video-, oudiovisuele- en 'n grafiese- afdeling.

Die PLATO-sisteem van gerekenariseerde onderrig en die taallaboratorium val ook onder die beheer van die Onderrigsentrum.

Alle versoeke vir die bruikleen of bestel van onderrigapparaat of vir dienste moet skriftelik aan prof. Sinclair gerig word.

Eksamenvrees

Die eksamens is hier en ongelukkig gaan dit gepaard met 'n hoë mate van spanning weens die belangrikheid daarvan vir bevordering na 'n volgende jaar of vir die verwerwing van 'n graad of diploma.

Moenie in die eksamentyd drasties afwyk van jou normale studie en lewenspatroon nie. Slaap genoeg, eet genoeg en gesond en kry genoeg oefening.

Vermy die oormatige gebruik van koffie of tee en vermy alle stimulante of 'wakkerblypille'. Dit sti-

The system of year marks and of taking these into account in awarding DP's and in calculating final marks, is an old one and is encountered in many forms in many parts of the world.

The initials DP stand for Duly Performed. A lecturer/Department Head awards a student a Duly Performed certificate to show that the student has performed the work expected of him to a reasonable degree of proficiency.

In South Africa we still rely heavily on the lecture system of teaching and on the written and practical examination as a means of evaluating a student's worth. On this depends the attainment of his degree or diploma.

All educators are aware of the imperfections of this system — the problem is that we do not have a suitable substitute.

The DP system is intended to ensure the student has covered the syllabus in a reasonable manner, attended sufficient number of classes, done the written tasks required and attended and performed the practicals.

He is not just someone who has relied on his memory or 'swotted up' with sufficient luck.

Of course he can swot or spot, without steady work during the year, and still pass. It is also likely that he will not have a sufficient grasp and understanding of the course. Thus he may score 70 percent in November but by December he may only remember 20 percent.

This is where the responsibility to the public comes in. Our graduates and diplomates are presented to the public as people who really know their subjects. A mere swotter and spotter who is turned loose on the public to start in January as a pharmacist, teacher, lawyer, accountant or dentist may easily be one who is by then back to the 20 percent mark.

But if he has gained a DP (even though only 34%) on steady application to study during the year, and then passes the examination, though still with the aid of swot and spot techniques, he is likely to be a better quality student and professional and the public's interest is the better protected.

So his DP gets him into the examination, on a basis of reasonable application. Remember, if he gains 50% or more in that examination, he will pass, and even if he has a low DP of, say 40%, it will not count against him. But if he scrapes a 49% in the year-end examination, a good DP may be referred to and help him over the stile.

Hopefully then, there is more good than bad in the DP system, nê?

Dear Counsellor,

It finally happened. My boyfriend and I went too far two weeks ago. It was the first time for both of us. Now we both regret what happened but feel too awkward and guilty to talk about it to each other. He seems to be avoiding me and I don't know how to handle the situation. I feel too embarrassed to talk to anyone about it (I know that I'm not pregnant).

Confused.

I appreciate your sharing such an intimate experience with me. I would have preferred not to have made this 'sharing' public but I need to reach out to you. I get the feeling that your intimate experience has left both you and your boyfriend with feelings of remorse and ambivalence.

While sexuality is a normal part of growing up, particularly in the period of life you and the typical student find yourselves, it is quite true that, because of our upbringing and social values, a first sexual experience can be difficult to deal with emotionally.

Since I do feel that you want to talk to someone in confidence about your feelings, I want to suggest that you come and speak with a counsellor of your choice. You may find it easier to speak with a female counsellor.

Depending on your needs, you may want to discuss contraceptive methods with her (and be referred to the sister) or enquire about the couples counselling group we plan to run shortly where you and your boyfriend can join in with other couples in discussing relevant issues in your relationship.
